

ABOARD FOR SOUTHAMPTON!

THAT IS WHERE THE YANKEE IN-MAN SPEEDER WILL DOCK.

The Southampton Harbor Board will have the Channel for the big ship—Quicker to London than the Queenstown Route.

The Inman Steamship Company has decided to abandon Liverpool as the port of arrival and departure of its principal vessels, and to use Southampton, London, and the North German Lloyd line, as the route to Europe. This means abandoning the Southampton route, which has been the most direct route to Europe for many years.

Representatives of the Inman line in this city said yesterday that it had not been decided yet whether or not all their ships would be withdrawn from the Liverpool route. It was likely that, after the addition of the three American-built ships to the line, some of the most direct routes to the Liverpool route.

The impression among American shipping men is that the Inman line will not get the exclusive privilege of carrying the mails from New York to the British Isles. This view is not shared by the agents of the North German Lloyd and the Hamburg-American lines, whose vessels stop at Southampton on the way to Germany to land passengers and mails for London. Mr. Schwab of the North German Lloyd line said that he did not think the United States would allow another line to depart from its custom, and that the European mails on the fast vessels of other lines than the Inman.

The Inman Steamship Company has a contract with the United States for carrying the mails. Under this contract, the company is to carry the mails from New York to Southampton, and from Southampton to London. The company is also to carry the mails from London to Southampton, and from Southampton to New York.

The advantages of Southampton as a port of entry and departure for English ships have been long recognized. The harbor is deep, and the water is calm. The city is a beautiful one, and the climate is pleasant. The harbor is also a good one for the shipping of goods.

Adolph Huntzker, a silk weaver, 40 years old, of 403 South Fifth street, Williamsburg, is mourning the disappearance of his young and pretty wife to whom he has been married three years, and who, he says, took with her all his household goods and furniture.

Huntzker was a widower with one child when he married her. She is 20 years old. She was a very beautiful girl, and she was very young.

SEVENTY WORTHLESS CHECKS.

Somebody is Making a Living on a Million Union Square Bank Book.

A check swindler has made nearly eighty victims among shopkeepers, mostly in the neighborhood of Fourteenth street. He is described as a middle-aged man, about 30 years old, with dark complexion and eyes, and black hair and mustache. His usual method is to make a purchase and to have the goods sent to his home at C. O. D. Then he has to make a check for the amount of the purchase, and to have the check cashed at the Union Square Bank.

On Aug. 5 he obtained a check for $27 from H. Felscher, 354 Third avenue, giving in payment a worthless check on the Union Square Bank, and signing it J. H. Felscher. Felscher notified the police at the East Fifty-third street station. Another case is that of J. J. Jontzen, a shoe dealer at 74 First avenue. The swindler went there last Wednesday night and purchased a pair of shoes for $27. He gave the dealer a check for $27, and the dealer cashed it at the Union Square Bank.

TWO SIDES TO THE BOYCOTT.

THE AMALGAMATED MEN FIND SEVERAL DIFFICULTIES IN THE SCHEME.

Demands Withdrawn When It Is Found that the Union Labor Mills Must Have Carnegie Iron in Order to Keep Going.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 15.—Although the manifesto published by the Federation of Labor, with which the Amalgamated Association is allied, does not declare a compulsory boycott against Carnegie steel, it is claimed that a boycott will be insisted upon wherever it can be made effective.

This was fully demonstrated by the action of the committee representing the Amalgamated Association that has called upon manufacturers to close their doors to Carnegie iron. In almost every case the men wanted it stipulated that no Carnegie steel should be used.

The demand is known to have been made upon J. P. Painter & Sons and the Republic Iron Works. The men were told firmly that the boycott feature would have to be left out of the manifesto, or they would be compelled to operate the mills as non-union hereafter. After a brief consultation the committee agreed to withdraw the boycott demand.

Last Friday afternoon a man entered M. W. Jones's bookstore at 23 Clinton place and he wanted to buy two Bibles. He described himself as a bookkeeper at 415 Third avenue, and said he had orders for the books and that he would pay for them. The man asked the bookseller to send him a Bible, and the bookseller sent him a Bible. The man then asked the bookseller to send him another Bible, and the bookseller sent him another Bible.

Mrs. Van Fradenburgh Celebrates Her One Hundred and Fifth Birthday.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Aug. 15.—Environed by the luxurious homes of the Chalmers, Astors, Montgomeries, Chamblains, Armstrongs, and Delanos there stands in the quiet old town of Red Hook the pretty cottage of Mrs. Charles Proper, where dwells Mrs. Mary Van Fradenburgh, who celebrated her 105th birthday yesterday. She was born in New York on Aug. 14, 1788, and the years that have passed since her birth have dealt kindly with her, for her eyes are still bright, her hearing good, and her brain active.

All day yesterday her friends and neighbors called upon her and wished her many more years of life and happiness. This remarkable old woman has never worn spectacles nor false hair; she still dresses and undresses as a dervish, and notwithstanding that she has a deformed hip, she takes a daily walk without a cane. She has a distinct recollection of New York when it was the chrysalis of the great metropolis of to-day. Her father, James Nelson, raised fruits and vegetables on a market garden situated where the foot of Grand street now is, and he sold his produce at the old City Market. He removed to Hyde Park, Dutchess county, in 1798, and from there he came to New York when it was the chrysalis of the great metropolis of to-day.
